Public Health Theory

- Public Health students will demonstrate the ability to explain a public health theory and apply that theory to a contemporary problem in public health planning.

Media Messages

- Public Health students will be able to identify and analyze the ways that mediated health messages reflect the contexts of race, gender, class, ethnicity, and sexuality.

Internship Preparation: Community/Public Service

- In keeping with our mission to prepare students for a wide variety of post-graduation experiences, students engaging in internships for their capstone community service experiences should be perceived to be prepared for their internships by their site supervisors.
